JOHN DUNGAN ON OASIS LIFELONG ADVENTURE - INTERGENERATIONAL TUTORING

Randy Rogers said John Dungan served as Executive Director of the United Way in our area for seven years. (He recently joined the American Red Cross as a Disaster Program Specialist.) John said he was very happy to announce this new United Way project. There are about 200 students here who need reading assistance, representing about a third of the student body. For just $2,700 this year, the United Way is able to start this program, utilizing volunteers who spend one hour each week (between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m.) with a single child for the school year. Since 1989, Oasis Intergenerational Tutoring has reached more than 444,000 children. In 2016, 4500 Oasis tutors in 19 U.S. cities helped children in 673 schools in 74 school districts across the country. The program has improved confidence, self-esteem, and academic performance of their students. John invited us to be tutoring partners. Our district receives training and support from the Oasis Tutoring Team and technical support from the National Tutoring Manager. The District also has access to the research-based Oasis Literacy Experience materials, recruitment assistance and supplies. Contact John <johndungan@sbcglobal.net> if you can help by volunteering or donating funds. Debi suggested perhaps two people might be able to share a position.
